Chronicle Office over W H. Bryarly's Store. II

IMPROVEMENT .- We greet our readers this morning with an improved and somewhat enlarged sheet. We think the letter constituting the present heading of our paper, a plain and very neat one-which can be read at a mere glance; the enlargement consists in an addition of one inch and a half to seven, and one inch to the other twenty-one columns-which enables us to give one column and a half more reading matter, yet retaining the same wized blank sheet of paper. We intend making other improvements, if the patronage we may receive will justify it. In proportion to the patronage, so will the improvement be.

THE Literary Association of this city, have received a letter from Park Benjamin, of New York, accepting their invitation to lecture in this city. Mr. Benjamin is making his way westward, and will be here about the last of next month, or the first of December. Notice of time &c., will be made known in due season.

The Association has also received letters of acceptance, from B. P. Shillaber, author of Mrs. Partington, Bishop Otev. and Herman Melville, author of "Omoo" and "Typee." They have invited the Hon. Thomas F. Marshall, of Ky., but have not, as yet, received an answer from him.

IT The Clarksville (Kv.) Chronicle has been transferred to Neblett & Grant, who will hereafter be the publishers and proprietors. The Chrontole is one of our most highly prized exchanges. A paper so ably conducted cannot fail to be profitable to the publishers.—Memphis Enquirer.

All right, Mr. Enquirer, but the locality. We have the honor of residing in Tennessee, the twin-sister of the Banner State.

The Mill-building is four stories high, besides a good basement room-is built Bank of Tennessee particularly. of brick, and is a fine job; each floor of the building is devoted to a special part of the business, and system and order is observed in every department. One thing that whole concern.

Besides the extensive buildings already erected, the proprietors have now nearly farming friends in relation to any improve completed, a large brick building near the Mill, to be used as a wheat house. With all the facilities for manufacturing, pos sessed by these Mills, it is not singular that they should have obtained, already, as they have, a high reputation for the excellence of their flour. In whatever market it has yet-been sold, and used, it las taken rank with the very best brands, and all who have used it here, will endorse that classification.

DRV GOODS

This fill is last coming into use in every section of this country, Canada, Cuba, and South sometimes to the country, Canada, Cuba, and South sometimes to Clarksville, consisting of every variety of Staple and Fancy

Of the large number of these mills now in operation, we define that has falled to give perfect satisfaction.

As will be seen from the engraving, the lower part of the mill is composed of a simple frame, the timbers of which are about eight inches square, either of oak or other hard wood, securely fastened together with strong iron belts. This framework is 7 feet long, 7 feet deep below the bed pieces, and 5 feet wide. The main shaft is 3½ inches in diameter, and the driving pulley 22 inches in diameter, and 9 inch face. The pitman wheel is of solid iron, and is three feet in diameter.

ter, and 9 inch face. The pitman wheel is of solid iron, and is three feet in diameter.

The pitman is of iron, four feet long, and is connected with the saw by an oscillating cross head. This arrangement of the sides and cross head, which has lately been patented, is the only plan we have ever seen by which the saw could be made to play up and down, with the desired rapidity, without grating and heating. It secures a uniform bearing on all parts, without regard to the position of the saw, and when the saw is once fastened at the bottom, it never has to be altered to sait any alteration in the rake, and even though it should not hang plumb, the guide pieces will adjust thems lives. This is a very important object gained, for under all the old arrangements, any Luccuracy in the hanging of the saw causes great friction and consequent destruction of machinery.

The carriage runs upon small friction wheels, four inches in diameter. Thus it moves with less shake, less noise, and less friction, and consequently requiring less power than in the old way. The saw used is of cast steel, 12 inches wide, and 7 feet long, sufficient for all logs under 3½ feet in diameter.

The new arrangement at the upper end of the saw consists of a slide made to be lowered or raised to suit the size of the log. The saw is guided at the lower end of this slide by means of two wooden gibs, and the upper end of the saw is fastened to two metallic blocks, which play up and down in the grooves, as seen in the engraving. The whole arrangement about the saw, both at the top and the bottom, is so perfect, that the saw glides up and down, with its wonderful speed almost as quietly and easily as though it were running only in oil. It has been the study of mechanics for years to produce something that would do away with the necessity of straining a saw in an upright mill, and, we believe, that object has never been fully attained until the discovery of the present plan.

The locomotive boller is ten feet long, containing 44 tubes, 2½ inches in diameter and 6 feet long. The shell is 34 inches in diameter; the firebox, 36 inches iong and 28 inches wide; smoke pipe, 18 inches in diameter and about 30 feet long. This boller may be rated as about 15 horse power.

The cylinder boller is 36 inches in diameter, 20 feet long, with 2 flues 12 inches in diameter, and possesses a generating capacity of about 18 horse power.

Cylinder boiler, with its connections, 4,500 lbs. Locomotive boiler, with its connections, 3,500 lbs. Engine, with its connections, 2,800 lbs. Mill, with its connections, 4,70° lbs. This machinery is regarded as good freight, and may be forwarded without trouble, either upon car, steamboat, or any other method, to any section of the country.

sge, etc., can make a very correct estimate what the mill will accomplish in any given time.

From the various statements of different parties using these mills, we calculate that from 3,000 to

Two men are sufficient to attend this mill, when the logs are convenient to the carriage. This power requires about two barrels of water per hour; any small spring or well affords a sufficient quan-

SECOND SIZE.

This mill is constructed on the same plan as the other, and is about one-third larger and heavier. It requires more power to drive it to its full speed and will saw a much larger amount in any given time. The saw is eight feet in length, sufficient for the largest and heaviest timber in any section.—
The engine is a 9 inch cylinder, and 24-inch stroke. The locomotive boiler furnished with it is 12 feet 4 inches long-diameter of the shell, 38 inches-furnace, 36 inches long and 37 inches wide-34 The cylinder boiler furnished with the above engine is 42 inches in diameter and 20 feet long, with

HOW MUCH IT WILL DO.

The speed of this mill is about three hundred strokes of the saw per minute, and the feed from to 2 of an inch for every stroke, depending upon the character of the timber. Thus, at a medium speed, the saw would cut through a log twelve feet long in from one to two minutes. From this data any practical man, knowing the character and size of the logs, their convenience to the carri-
